Community Advocate Dedicated to Making Lives Better

“I am grateful to be able to help communities in the Valley achieve their vision of economic success. This career allows me the opportunity to make a difference in the lives of the residents of the communities which I serve.”

Emily Jones is a regional development consultant with TVA Economic Development and serves the communities located in western Kentucky. She is based out of TVA’s Hopkinsville, Kentucky, office.

Emily’s current responsibilities include assisting prospective and existing businesses and industries; facilitating financial, technical and other business development resources; helping communities prepare for economic growth opportunities; implementing community and retail development programs; and building strong business working relationships with local power companies and regional, state and local community economic development leaders.

Emily joined TVA in 2014 as an economic development training and development consultant working with Valley communities to enhance community development efforts.

Prior to joining TVA, she was an assistant vice president for the Clarksville-Montgomery County, Tennessee, Economic Development Council and has approximately 13 years’ experience in the economic development field. Emily has a bachelor’s degree in communication from Austin Peay State University in Clarksville.

Emily and husband Josh have a daughter Lainey and son Jasper.
